HILLEL FOUNDATION AND GW EXCHANGE PROPERTY

Charles E. Diehl, Vice President and Treasurer of The George Washington University, and Rabbi Gerald Serotta, Director of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation at GW, announced today that an agreement has been reached concerning a joint real estate transaction involving an exchange of Hillel's property at 2129 F Street and the University's property at 23rd and H Streets.

Hillel's efforts in its search for larger, up-graded campus accommodations will be realized when funding becomes available and construction for the new quarters at the new location can begin.

The old Hillel house was recently demolished by the Foundation. Land will soon be cleared. In this unique property swap, the University acquires Hillel's land at 2129 F Street and Hillel will build at 23rd and H Streets. Diehl stated that the University is considering several options for use of the newly acquired property with one potential possibility being an additional outdoor recreation area for students.

According to Mr. Diehl and Rabbi Serotta, the transfer benefits both Hillel and GW.

GW COUNSELING CENTER HOLDS FOURTH ANNUAL CHALK-IN

The George Washington University Counseling Center will hold its fourth annual Chalk-In on Thursday, April 19, from noon to 1:30 p.m., in the Gelman Library Courtyard, 2130 H Street, N.W. (The rain date is Wednesday, April 25, same time, same location.) On this day students, faculty, and administration put their work aside, push their sleeves up, and go wild with oversized chalk sticks to produce a panoply of color and expression on the surrounding pavement.

The event, which is organized by the Center's Coordinator of Art Therapy Services, Sandy Geller, is an outlet for feelings connected with the semester's end, final exams, and commencement.

For further information call Sandy Geller, or Thorne Wiggers at 676-6550.

WHAT: FASHIONS OF THE PAST 90 YEARS

WHEN: 1:30 p.m., SATURDAY, APRIL 14

WHERE: MARVIN CENTER THEATRE, 800 - 21st STREET, N.W.

The Columbian Women of the George Washington University, an alumni group that sponsors scholarships for GW students, is observing its 90th birthday on April 14 with a 1:30 p.m. showing of fashions beginning with the 1890s and continuing down to the 1980s in the Marvin Center Theatre. Columbian Women members will model the historic costumes. The group was founded in 1894 because of the concern of the young women in GW's Corcoran Scientific School for a young woman whose father had been killed in the Ford's Theatre disaster of 1893, making it impossible for her to continue her studies without help in paying her tuition.

JANE LINGO of the GW News and Public Affairs Office will be present to assist photographers.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

JOHN W. VESSEY, JR. CHAIRMAN OF THE JOINT CHIEFS OF STAFF
TO BE HONORED BY G.W. PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION DEPARTMENT

General John W. Vessey will be presented the Second Annual Distinguished Public Service Award by the George

Washington University Department of Public Administration

at a reception from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. on Friday, April 20

at the GW University Club in the Marvin Center (800 21st St.).

Faculty, alumni and students will gather to honor General

Vessey, appointed the tenth Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff by President Ronald Reagan.

General Vessey first distinguished himself as a soldier in 1944 when he received a battlefield commission as a Second Lieutenant of Field Artillery at the Anzio Beachhead. He has since served his country in North Africa, Italy, Germany and Vietnam.

In 1976 General Vessey was assigned to Korea as

Commander-in-Chief, United Nations Command; Commander,

U.S. Forces, Korea; and Commanding General, Eighth U.S.

Army. In 1978 he also became the first Commander-in-Chief of the Republic of Korea, United States Combined Forces Command.

General Vessey graduated from the University of Maryland with a Bachelor of Science degree in 1963, from the George Washington University with a Master of Science degree in 1965 and from the University of Pittsburgh
Management Program for Executives in 1970.

The award will be presented by The Honorable Gilbert

Gude, the 1983 recipient. Mr. Gude is currently the Director of the Congressional Research Service of the Library of Congress and has been a member of the Maryland House of Delegates, the Maryland State Senate and the U.S. House of Representatives.

The event is sponsored by the Alumni Council of the Department of Public Administration, whose president, Dr. Harry West, will preside over the ceremonies. The event is by invitation only.

at the GW University Club in the Marvin Center (800 21st St.).
Faculty, alumni and students will gather to honor General
Vessey, appointed the tenth Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff by President Ronald Reagan.

General Vessey first distinguished himself as a soldier in 1944 when he received a battlefield commission as a Second Lieutenant of Field Artillery at the Anzio Beachhead. He has since served his country in North Africa, Italy, Germany and Vietnam.

In 1976 General Vessey was assigned to Korea as

Commander-in-Chief, United Nations Command; Commander,

U.S. Forces, Korea; and Commanding General, Eighth U.S.

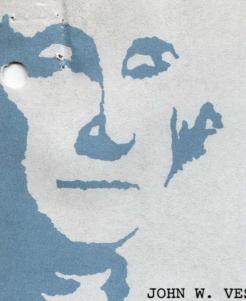

Army. In 1978 he also became the first Commander-in-Chief of the Republic of Korea, United States Combined Forces Command.

General Vessey graduated from the University of Maryland with a Bachelor of Science degree in 1963, from the George Washington University with a Master of Science degree in 1965 and from the University of Pittsburgh
Management Program for Executives in 1970.

The award will be presented by The Honorable Gilbert Gude, the 1983 recipient. Mr. Gude is currently the Director of the Congressional Research Service of the Library of Congress and has been a member of the Maryland House of Delegates, the Maryland State Senate and the U.S. House of Representatives.

The event is sponsored by the Alumni Council of the Department of Public Administration, whose president, Dr. Harry West, will preside over the ceremonies. The event is by invitation only.

U.S. PRODUCTIVITY: AN ASSESSMENT OF PROBLEMS,
PROSPECTS AND POLICIES

The American economy is still the most productive in the world even though it has suffered from sagging growth during the past two decades. Since 1960, Japanese productivity grew more than three times as fast as U.S. productivity; even Great Britain's faltering economy could boast an average gain that was 33 percent above the U.S. rate. Manufacturing industries have caused the greatest concern because they are responsible for the weakened American competitiveness in key industries in the international markets.

In their newly published book, Productivity: Problems,

Prospects and Policies, George Washington University Research

Professor Sar A. Levitan and Diane Werneke examine the economic and institutional factors that have caused the nation's lackluster productivity performance, and they scrutinize current proposals now being studied for reviving productivity growth.

"Sustained productivity growth is imperative for America's continued national prosperity," the authors state. Rising productivity has virtually defined the United States as a nation. For a generation following World War II, Americans found themselves better off each year, and they accepted the results as a natural development. As long as productivity generated significant gains, few policymakers and citizens paid attention to this "esoteric subject."
Recently, however, U.S. productivity problems have become an increasing national concern.

The authors warn that "productivity means different things to different people." Confusion persists, therefore, about the concept of productivity as well as the causes of and cures for the nation's poor performance.

Economists tend to focus on capital investment, declining and expanding economic sectors, the changing compostion of the labor force, or the economy's shift from goods-producing to service industries. On the other hand, labor market or industrial organization analysts view productivity more in terms of interactions between managers and their employees. They blame the prevailing adversarial relationship between managers and labor, as well as the failure of many business leaders to properly manage their organizations, for the slowdown in America's productivity growth. Some argue that transplanting the practices and techniques of other nations would enhance American productivity—an idea the authors feel will not work.

The authors conclude that judicious investments in labor market programs (both private and public) could enhance productivity. "Sustained progress in productivity requires institutional adjustments and easing—if not removing—obstacles to change," they state. "Government intervention will be necessary to achieve the twin goals of a more productive and more compassionate society."

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

GW BOARD OF TRUSTEES RECOMMENDS
POLICY FOR LAW SCHOOL FUTURE

The Board of Trustees of the George Washington University decided today that the National Law Center should become a single law school unit, without separate daytime or evening divisions.

The announcement followed a special meeting of the GW Board at which a report on the future of the evening division, prepared by a five-member Trustee committee, was adopted unanimously.

By its action today, the GW Board transmitted the report through University President Lloyd H. Elliott to GW National Law Center Dean Jerome A. Barron with the suggestion that its recommendations be implemented beginning with the 1985-86 entering class.

"This action provides for full-time and part-time legal studies and for a common admissions pool with the same high standards for all admitted students," said President Elliott. "I am particularly pleased with this decision which seems to be satisfactory to all concerned," Elliott added.

The report states that, "As a matter of educational policy, the National Law Center, i.e. the law school of The George Washington University, should be a single law school with a single standard of admission from a single pool of applicants which will accommodate the widest possible range of students seeking a legal education including both full-time and part-time students."

The report outlines structural changes which should accompany the overall policy. These include: one single pool of applicants for law school registration to be judged by the same high standards and a structure of class schedules to accommodate students who wish to stretch out the period during which they complete requirements for graduation while working either full-time or part-time.

Board action taken today further provides: that there shall be no predetermined number of seats allocated to students as either full-time or part-time; that the structure worked out by the law school faculty must be fully acceptable to and clearly within the accreditation requirements of the Association of American Law Schools and the American Bar Association; and that no choice shall be required of a law school applicant as to either full-time or part-time study prior to his or her actual acceptance.

Dean Barron said, following the meeting, "This is a fair and workable plan which preserves the option of a part-time program for legal study, yet takes a step forward in providing for a common pool for applicants to the law school."

In the course of the deliberations of the special committee, chaired by GW Board Chairman Glen A. Wilkinson, all those who wished to appear, representing all points of view, were fully heard. In addition, the committee talked with a number of persons whose perspectives it was felt could add to the committee's understanding and to the resolution of the problem. The committee also accepted submissions from all interested parties.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MAURICE A. EAST NAMED DEAN AT GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

Maurice A. (Mickey) East has been named Dean of the George Washington University School of Public and International Affairs, effective January 10, 1985.

In making the announcement University President Lloyd H. Elliott said, "I am delighted to welcome Dr. East to the GW community. His scholarly accomplishments, wide reputation in international studies, and demonstrated leadership in higher education make him extremely well-qualified to provide the direction needed as we enter a period of planned advancement for our School of Public and International Affairs."

Commenting on his appointment, Dr. East said, "It is a great opportunity to be able to direct this School so ideally located in the nation's capital and in the center of world affairs. I look forward to joining my colleagues in building upon the present framework as we define the SPIA role for the future in educating persons to operate effectively in an increasingly international and multicultural environment."

Currently a Senior Fellow at the Strategic Concepts Development Center of the National Defense University in Washington, Dr. East has been employed at the University of Kentucky for the past 12 years. At Kentucky, he holds the rank of professor in the Department of Political Science, has served as Associate Director of the Patterson School of Diplomacy and International Commerce there, and has been active in numerous professional and community organizations.

Mickey East was a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Colgate University in 1963. As a Woodrow Wilson Fellow, he did his graduate work at Princeton University, receiving the M. A. and Ph.D. in politics in 1966 and 1970. Later he was a Fulbright Research Fellow in Norway, and a Rockefeller Foundation Consultant to Makerere University in Uganda.

Dr. East is in the front rank among his peers in the field of comparative foreign policy studies, with a particular focus on the foreign policy problems and practices of smaller nation. He has served as an advisor to the government of Norway and to the Foreign Service Institute of the U.S. Department of State.

Professor East is active in the International Studies Association, the Center for War/Peace Studies, the United Nations Association, and is a member of the Board of Directors of the Social Sciences Education Consortium.

Dr. East and his wife, Jessie, have one son, named Barrett.

GW RADIO AND TELEVISION INSTITUTE OFFERS SIX SUMMER COURSES

The George Washington University Radio and Television

Summer Institute will offer a total of six courses this summer--offering two separate sessions of three courses each.

The first session lasts three weeks (May 14-June 5) and includes: Radio and Television Performance—an introduction to the theories and techniques for non-dramatic media performance, (Monday—Friday, 10:30 a.m.—12:40 p.m.); The Music Business:

From Rag to Rock—a seminar on the history, selection, promotion and production of popular music by the American recording industry, (Monday—Friday, 1:50 p.m.—4 p.m.); and Topics in Electronic Media: News in America, History in the Making—a colloquium on media news, freedom of the press, content decisions, agenda settings, format, audience, and network rivalry, (Monday—Friday, 6:10 p.m.—8:20 p.m.).

Registration day for the first session is May 11.

The second session lasts five weeks (June 11-July 16) and includes: Development of American Electronic Media--a study of the origins, structure and nature of American broadcasting, (Monday-Thursday, 4 p.m.-5:35 p.m.); Scriptwriting-study and practice of the forms, techniques, and types of writing for radio, TV, and film, (Monday-Thursday, 5:50 p.m.-7:30 p.m.); and Special Studies in Film--an in-depth study of a specific topic in film, (Monday-Thursday, 7:40 p.m.-9:15 p.m.). Registration day for the second session is June 8.

For more information on these courses, call the George Washington University Summer Sessions Office, 676-6360.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

PRINTMAKING: HISTORY AND PRACTICE

The Art Department of The George Washington University will offer an intensive three credit course, entitled "Printmaking: History and Practice," (Art 138) May 14 through June 5, Monday to Friday, from 6:10 to 8:00 p.m. Registration for this and all first session summer courses is May 11, noon to 7:00 p.m. The course will be taught by Fuller Griffith, assistant professor of graphics at GW.

Art 138 will cover the history of the basic techniques of woodcut, etching, engraving, lithography, stencil and silk-screen. Slide lectures will include examples of contributions to the field of printmaking, which date from three thousand years ago to the present. Students will practice printmaking using each of the basic techniques.

Mr. Griffith was Associate Curator of Graphic Arts at the Smithsonian Institution for ten years prior to joining GW's Art Department in 1965. His prints are in the collections of major museums.
